

Jamison C. Buxton

CEO, HEMOPHILIA OUTREACH CENTER

Jamison C. Buxton is a results-driven leader with over a decade of executive experience and a proven track record of turning vision into measurable impact. As CEO of the Hemophilia Outreach Center, he leads with a focus on growth, operational strength, and delivering meaningful outcomes for the communities the organization serves.

Over the past 10 years in executive leadership, Jamison has built teams, driven strategic initiatives, and navigated complex challenges with clarity and purpose. He is known for stepping into demanding situations, creating structure, and moving work forward with momentum.

With a leadership style grounded in accountability and action, Jamison brings energy, decisiveness, and real-world insight to every stage he steps on.

Outside of his professional work, Jamison enjoys spending time with his wife and children, and can often be found outdoors or at the cabin, recharging and staying connected to what matters most.
